A conversation with our guest . . .

. . . Mitchell Mullen, Energy Consultant with Energy Tight Homes

What does an energy consultant do?

Energy consultants conduct energy assessments to help homeowners improve their home's energy efficiency and save money while doing so. Improvements can range from window replacement to insulation to solar power.

How did Mitchell get into the field?

Mitchell has a bachelor's degree in applied science and technology. His previous work experience includes being an operations manager for Patterson Dental and Dillard's. In addition, he completed his 13-year career with the Army as a chemical officer for a battalion in Pennsylvania.

Along with his BS, he is a BPI (Building Performance Institute) Certified Building Analyst, Envelope Professional, and LEED Green Associate.

Mitchell relocated to Matthews from Pittsburgh five years ago. He is married to Julie and they have a son, Wesley, who is 14 and working on his Life Scout.

Mitchell's philosophy: To be a thoughtful community professional with a passion for home energy efficiency, building science, and the future of our planet.

Tim is glad that his son, Josh, graduates from high school on Friday and he's happy that the 5th Annual Chevront Family Reunion at Lake Lure is coming up.

Rob is happy to have attended the Senior Honors Recognition at Butler HS and that our guest speaker, Zach, received a standing ovation (initiated by his peers) when his appointment to West Point was announced!

Bill is happy to have a young man of Zach's caliber headed to West Point.

Susan is pleased to have our guest and his family and cautiously happy that she and Don will be camping this weekend with their 6 month old puppy. (She got both of those "happys" for only a dollar!!)

Volunteers are not paid -- not because they are worthless, but because they are priceless.
